

THE 3D'S OF ONLINE ANTISEMITISM

In 2003 Natan Sharansky developed a vital definition for the new antisemitism – the 3 D test, to help us distinguish legitimate criticism of Israel from antisemitism.

DOUBLE STANDARD

Application of different sets of principles on similar situations. If a person criticizes Israel and only Israel on certain issues, but ignores similar situations conducted by other countries they are performing a double standard policy against Israel.

Online examples: It disguises bias as critique. All nations deserve fair judgement.

What does a double standard on Wikipedia look like?

Lefka (like Larnaka) is listed in Cyprus, Taipei is listed as Taiwan, but Jerusalem isn't listed as part of Israel and is treated as an orphan city.

Despite repeated attempts to correct this, the claim of 'no consensus' persists, exposing the tyranny of biased editors at play.

🗣️ 🗣️ We have noted on more than one occasion on mainstream media that it is a prevailing belief within Judaism that the Jews believe that they themselves will be their own "Messiah". Supremacist and self-aggrandizing personified.

But a closer look into the sources provides an even darker insight.... פחות

DELEGITIMIZATION

Act of denying the State of Israel's right to exist or questioning the Jewish people's right to self-determination in their ancestral homeland. It goes beyond criticism of Israeli policies by portraying Israel as inherently illegitimate, immoral, or racist, and by applying standards or labels not used against any other country.

Online examples: It erases Jewish identity and history while denying a right granted to others.
